

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

One piece integrally molded frame members that fit against each other to form a support frame having an article retaining recess therein.

1. A frame member comprising a first end and a second end, the first end being adapted to fit against a second frame member, the second end being adapted to fit against a third frame member, the first end and the second end being integrally molded together to form a support frame having an article retaining recess therein.